Edit 2: I'm really stuck with this, after many tests I was never able to get it to work. I'm adding a bounty to the question, which will be awarded to a fully working solution (not to some pointer to cryptic Cisco documentation or unrelated scenarios).. In order to allow people to help, here's my current router configuration (stripped of non-relevant and private details).

Catalyst is the brand for a variety of network switches sold by Cisco Systems. While commonly associated with Ethernet switches, a number of different network interfaces have been available throughout the history of the brand. Cisco acquired several different companies and rebranded their products as different versions of the Catalyst product line.
