Tacoma did not do well after the Chinese were driven out. While it is hard to believe that the loss of a few hundred residents, no matter how enterprising and hard-working, could have hurt the city's economy all that much, it remains a fact that as the decades passed, Tacoma fell further and further behind Seattle in terms of population and prosperity.

Because noncognitive qualities like grit, curiosity, self-control, optimism, and conscientiousness are often described, with some accuracy, as skills, educators eager to develop these qualities in their students quite naturally tend to treat them like the skills that we already know how to teach: reading, calculating, analyzing, and so on. And as the value of noncognitive skills has become ...
